Korea: Land of the Morning Calm brings us into South Korea, a land with over 5,000 years of history. Buddy Hatton explores the Royal Palaces and gardens, modern and traditional sites in Seoul, and memorials to those who were forgotten in the struggles with North Korea, Russia, and China. Combining wit, educational commentary, and beautiful footage, Hatton hopes to introduce us to this small but culturally important Asian country.
Buddy Hatton got his start in show business hosting a television and radio program in San Francisco. Over the years he has mastered many aspects of the business, having been a record producer, talent manager, and commercial spokesman for numerous major corporations. He has also had a storied career in San Francisco radio, where he developed a faithful following at KSFO, KNEW, and KFRC. But it was Buddy’s love for people and passion for new places that eventually turned him into a travelogue producer.

This film is sponsored by the Wisconsin Union Performing Arts Committee.
